

Die Martis, 5 Junii, 1649.

THe Parliament having received Intelligence from the Generals by Sea, of a remarkable additional Mercy, The prosperous Success Almighty God hath given their Fleet, by the taking of many considerable Ships of the English and Irish Pirats at Sea, and reducing of the rest into such a straight within the Port of Kinsale, as may give a good ground to hope for the total dissipation of these Enemies so destructive to Religion, and the Safety of this Commonwealth, Do Order, That on Thursday next, being a day set apart for publique Thanksgiving, the Ministers in their severall Congregations praise God for so great a Mercy; and that they do beseech the Lord to continue his Blessing upon the further proceedings of the Fleet, for the carrying on the work by Sea, as well as by Land, and for the Relief and Preservation of Ireland, and the supporting this Commonwealth against the Plots and Enterprizes of all evil Instruments.

Die Martis, 5 Junii, 1649.

O*rdere*d by the Commons assembled in Parliament, That this Order be forthwith Printed and Published.

Hen: Scobell, Cler. Parliamenti.

London, Printed for Edward Husband, Printer to the Honorable House of Commons, June 5. 1649.